

Abstract of the Disclosure

Techniques for streaming electroporation. A representative but non-limiting method includes: generating a spatially inhomogeneous electric field with a pair of electrodes and displacing the pair of electrodes and a sample relative to one other while the electric field is substantially constant in terms of magnitude so that the sample is displaced across electric field lines for a time sufficient to effect electroporation.

10